

When flying with your Michael Harding oil paints, we always recommend you place a notice in your luggage for the airport security personnel to read, it will inform them that you are carrying oil paints and that they are safe to transport.

On the next page, there is a printable version of our 2019 IATA letter that you need put in your luggage alongside your MH paints when travelling.

This is an internationally recognised letter letting airport security people know our paints are safe to fly in the luggage hold.

Where ever you may be travelling this year, we wish you a safe and pleasant journey!

Customer support note:

Paints carried by customers of "Michael Harding Art Materials Ltd"

The materials carried by this customer have been checked against the classification criteria of the IATA Dangerous Goods regulations, 2019, section 3.

As per sub section 3.3.2.2 and Table 3.3.A, and section 3.6.1.3. and Table 3.6.A., the materials are "Not Restricted" for air transportation, based on the production information supplied.

(Multiple MSDS and SDS filed)

John RYAN

IATA DGR Instructor / DGSA

member (BADGP)
British Association of Dangerous Goods Professionals.

Valid until 21st February 2021